STILESVILLE PEOPLE MAKE CP FUND TO PAY CAR FARE OF YOUNG PEDESTRIAN-Y. C. HURST, HOTEL KEEPTR, AND OCEAN-TO-OCEAN PED. TAKE UP COLLECTION TO HELP SMALL BOY HOME.

The desire to get home to attend the wedding of his mother and to spend Christmas with homefolks, led a Brazil lad, whose name was not learned, to hike from the eastern part of the state to his home here The lad, who is fifteen years of age was tired and foot sore and hungry when he reached Stilesville and was taken in by the hotel keeper of that

He said that he was working, but desired to leave to go home and attend the wedding of his mother This angered his employer, who refused to pay him for the time he had put in. The lad started out to wall home. At Stilesville V. C. Hurst of that place and Walter Standow, as ocean-to-ocean pedestrian, started subscription for him and obtained money enough to send him home o the train.-Brazil Times.

SAW MILL AT CLOVERDALE

The Meek & Truesdel saw mill. north of town, burned down at 11:00 clock last Tuesday night.

Mrs. Sterling McCammack, who lives near the mill yard, saw the fire after it had made a good headway. and telephoned to central. The alarm of fire was given, but by the time people arrived at the mill it was almost burned down.

It is unknown just how the fire or ignated. It is thought, however, that it started from the sparke from from a threshing machine engine which was run in the mill yard late Tuesday evening. This engine was used to run the mill, and was taken out Tuesday morning for other purposes. Mr. Meek intended to replace the engine in the mill Tuesday afternoon but as it was late when they return ed, it was left on the mill yard. Sparks from the engine probably caused the fire.

The wind was from the north, and therefore prevented the flames from destroying other lumber and Woody McKamey's house on the north side

The mill was small, and was insured for enough to cover cost of the fixtures.-Cloverdale Graphic.

Obituary.

On the 10th of December at the turn of noon occurred the death of bright little Margaret Anna Hunter, quarter of Sec. Seven (7) Township the older child of Fred Ernest and Mary Gooodwin Hunter, whose quiet country home lies in East Marion township, Putnam county, Ind. This promising child accidently fell into a basin of hot water while walkin backward pulling the string of he hoby horse on Monday the 9th, and although the burn was not consid ed serious, yet this, with her high nervous tension resulted in her death the following day

She was born on Sept. 25, 1909 and was therefore three years, two months and fifteen days old at the time of death. No child was ever brighter, none ever more teachable and none more beautiful and apt in childish ways than she and nonmore lovable.

Her innocent precision and womanly sympathy and effectionate "let me show you" are left as undying monuments to the loved ones that knew her and loved her.

In this Christmas tide while little ones are enjoying their precious presents, her little soul will spend this and succeeding Christmases with her Blessed Saviour in the land beyond the tomb. And her interests in the beautiful things of an earthly character are supplanted by real treasures in heaven.

She was not only the pet of her own family but also in the grandparent's homes she was their satisfac tion and great delight. Her only great grand-parent now living, Mrs Lucinda Goodwin of Quinn, Ohio. will join you sorrowful ones and share your burden of sorrow today

She was indeed the real pet of every home she entered and Grandma Perry's home is one who will " member her childish pranks and her playful hours in years to come.

the living relatives who are stricken in this bereavement.

She leaves her dear papa and mamma, her little baby brother, Morris Spencer, seven weeks old, her grand-parents and the other immediate relatives with neighbors and friends to weep over their great and adden loss.

The funeral took place from the Christian church at Fillmore or Thursday: services conducted by the Rev. W. H. Brown. We return thanks for the unlimited kindness received and to the special quartet and the organist rendering the music at the church and also to the ones that furnished music at the beautiful home.

THE MAGIC HORN.

BY REV. GUY ARTHUR JAMIESON

They shall dwell in their own land, -Jeremiah, xxlii., 8.

The text suggests the truth that, ooner or later, every man will "ge what he deserves," "come into own," "dwell in his own land." in a spiritual sense at least can get away from himself; that co tain attitudes of mind and heart w inevitably produce certain results spite of mere physical conditions an adventitious circumstances

Wealth is not necessary to the fee ing of generosity nor inte tainment to honesty nor po fluence to the spirit of love. Men can be great in characin the most humble spheres. what we mean when we man shall dwell in his come into his own-what be his real satisfaction and reward

Material circumstances part in the development of so easy to be good, generous fust." But riches do not n develop these virtues. If we h not already the motive and in our poverty, riches would not have more temptations than the ri we sometimes hear. Not more different. Good men will be go rich or poor; and the evil ones be evil-"they shall dwell in the own land." They shall live with the own soul, and what ft is will be measure of their real worth, usef less, happiness,

Hans Andersen has a story of magic horn which when blown dre every one to his right place. The ri worthy was promoted. It gestive story, and perhaps would peal to the poor as right, but not good in principle. only material values when in fa worthy of his poverty-that is, g to each a character that would e able him to be useful and happy his own state-it would be me striking. But we do not need a mag horn. Men inevitably come into their

The optimist believes in himself, his fellow, in his God. He meets l with a smile, and life smiles back a He makes friends; circu stances seem to favor him; he tains what he believes he can attain because the attitude of his mind se in action certain forces within hims that influence outward circumstance favorable to the attainment of his sires. On the other hand t simist questions himself, his his God. He meets life with a gro and a grievance, and life gives ba to him no more than he expects of it doubts, disappointments, failures. Thus man, after all, makes the land in which he must dwell. There is I escaping ourselves. We make or soul's habitat, and in the end, what ever it be, we come to dwell in own land.

Fishers of Men. "I will make you fishers of mer What a promise, and how aptly of scriptive of all forms of Christian work is that word, "fishers!" Sor may use nets and get a draught. Mo of us are anglers merely. We men by "ones." The work of one man for one m is the business of the church. G called Philip from his evangelism the populous cities of Samaria to desert place, that he might there to with one man. Jesus might have gon with His disciples to the city to b meat, and have gathered about H an audience in the synagogue, He preferred to spend the noon ho with one woman at Jacob's well. The emphasis of the Master's life was la on the few rather than the man and when the church changes th emphasis, it has deflected somewhat from His conception of service. Home Herald.

To-morrow. A little seed lay in the groun

The spring winds breathed upon spot, and the welcome sun smi upon it, and the earliest rains fell a kissed it, and all of them whisper to it, "Burst into life!" But to the invitation the sluggish seed respo ed, "Not yet-to-morrow, to-morrow So the days passed, and August ca with its dry sky and parching s and the little seed awaking, cr "Now I will burst into life." But the was no longer a spring sun to sn upon it, or a spring wind to breath upon it, or spring rains to kiss it, a it died in the coffin which should have been its cradle, murmurin "Too late! Too late!"

Holiness is not a rapturous trium away up somewhere in vague heigh of glory, steadfast and splendid ill a sun. It is just a poor heart to makes room for Jesus, Mary Gu Pearse.
